FOREWORD

Our endeavor has been, not to leave with you a classic volume to be soon forgotten, but to develop an accurate record, in picture, prose, and poetry, of the college, the student body and its activities. If, in the future, a lull of an hour or two should come in your labors, pick up this book and turn its pages; if then fond memories arise, our work will not have been in vain.

Yesterday

At early dawn when I awake
And so begin the new-born day,
Before I rise I often take
A backward glance to yesterday.

The many lessons that I caught
From those events that happened then,
Have left the courage I had sought
To help me in the world of men.

And so as down life's trail I go
To find that high and better way,
I forward face—but even so
I can't forget the yesterday.

WHY THE EDS DON'T STUDY

Nature's Songs

The Music found in Nature is
The sweetest one may hear,
Its beauty fills the heart and charms
The most aesthetic ear.

The soft rain patters on the roof
A symphony of sound;
Within the fury of the storm
A melody is found.

In ceaseless flow of harmony
The merry brook trips on;
The wind that's singing through the trees,
Breaks forth into a song.

The bird that flits among the trees,
And sweetly sings away
Must have a mate upon the nest
That he should be so gay.

The bees that fly about the flow'r
Are humming soft, a tune;
At dusk the nightingale comes forth
And serenades the moon.

So in the forest and the fields,
Wherever man may roam
The music nature there has placed
Finds in the heart its home.

DR. D. M. KEY

The day of reckoning is at hand, and the "Old War Horse" has reckoned well. The "objectives" are in sight. Millsaps has come from behind in athletics, and he has been largely responsible.

COACH "ZIMMIE" ZIMOSKI

He came to us with a good reputation for knowing sports and has made a better one. In the one year that he has been at Millsaps, he has produced a winning football team, and his other teams show signs of like conduct.

STUDENT MANAGER COMBS

Bill deserves his position. During his sojourn at Millsaps, he has shown himself deeply interested in her athletic activities. The schedule he arranged for 1922-23 has been a splendid one and is largely due to his tireless efforts.

McEWEN, FOOTBALL MANAGER

Fred's inability to play the entire season because of an injury, did not dampen his zeal and interest in football. He worked ceaselessly advertising the games, thus helping to make the 1922 football season a financial success.

The 1922 Football Season

OUR football season did not result in piling up great scores against our adversaries.

Since the introduction of inter-collegiate football in Millsaps College three years ago, the success of each year could not be called even mediocre. This was not unlooked for, however, as no college is expected to produce a winning team in two years' time.

During this embryonic period, the team learned to bear the chagrin of defeat and to experience the exultation of victory. They were drilled, not only in the fundamentals of the game, but in gentlemanly conduct on the field.

The student body is to be congratulated on its conduct during this trying period. Defeats were accepted philosophically; victories, with a feeling of elation. Never was that spirit which cheers the team and which binds the student body, lost. And what has been the result?

The first game of 1922 was a victory for the Majors.

The second was a defeat by Centenary, but not by a large score as was predicted. The Purple and White played a hand-picked team, but made a most creditable showing. The phenomenal surprise of the season came when our ancient rival, Mississippi College, beat us by a score of only 13 to 6.

Then came the turning of the tide for the Majors; then came the real victory of the season. The student body saw that the team was a winning one. That element of "knock" was lost; moral support became almost frenzied, such cheering had never before been shown on the campus. The people of Jackson also awakened to the fact that Millsaps possessed fighting ability. Criticism became favorable; meetings were held to guarantee games; parades were staged; attendance at games became much improved; a spirit of co-operation grew between town and school; and as a climax to the season, the sportsmen of the town made available a fund of $1,500 to properly equip next year's team.

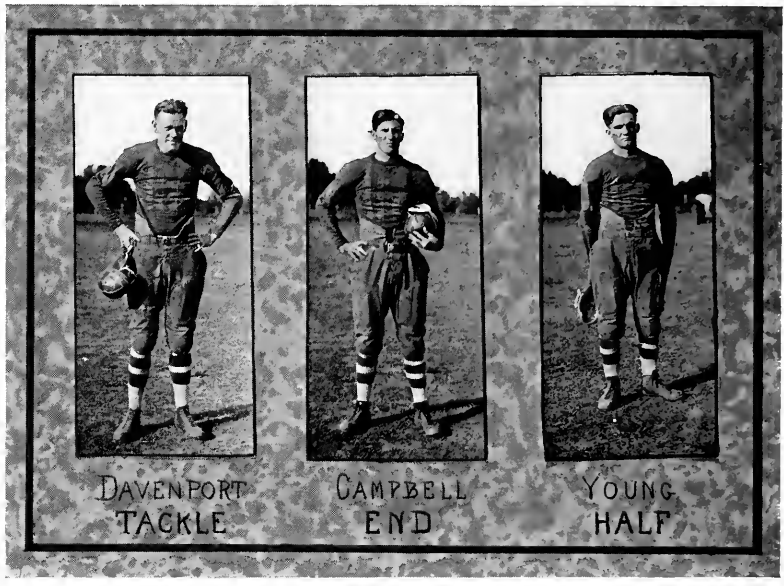

Thus ended the 1922 football season; a success, as ours was a moral victory. An everlasting spirit of confidence permeated the student body, and the city of Jackson assured us of its whole-hearted support. The team added to a reputation for fair play and for gentlemanly conduct on the field, one for being able to put forth real effort and to engage the enemy in a real and a winning fight.

FOOT BALL

CLARK-MEMORIAL, 0; MILLSAPS, 39

The season opened with a bang when the Militant Majors trampled the light and inexperienced Clark Memorial eleven and romped to victory on the large end of a 39 to 0 score.

From the kickoff it was apparent that the Baptists from East Mississippi were inferior to the Majors who, before the end of the first quarter, had twice crossed the counting stripe.

Six touchdowns were scored. Clark made only two first downs during the game and each time a five-yard off-side penalty aided the Baptists.

To J. W. Young, better known as "Stump," goes the honor of crossing the enemy line for the first touchdown of the season. Jimmie Campbell did some excellent defensive work in the opening game. He also smashed the Clark secondary on the offensive.

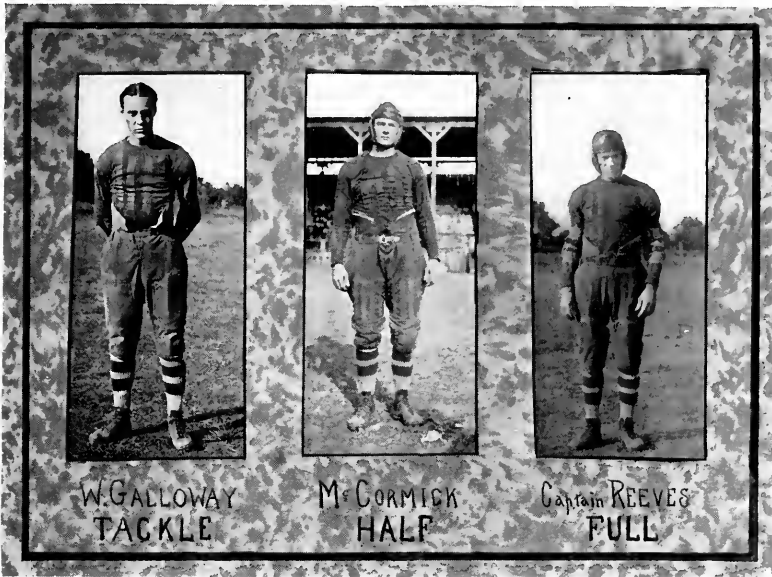

BIRMINGHAM-SOUTHERN, 21; MILLSAPS, 0

The Panthers of Birmingham-Southern were the only opponents of the Majors who turned back the Purple wave without a score. Only once did the Majors threaten, and then a fumble on the Panther six-yard line fell under a Gold and Black warrior—and the Majors threatened no more.

The game was played on October 22, 1922, a day of disaster for all Mississippi teams. The Majors were handicapped by the loss of three men from the backfield, and Stovall, regular punter, was suffering from a twisted ankle.

"Lightnin'" Davenport carried the day on the defense, according to the comment of the Birmingham papers and the laudations of his team-mates. "Stump" Young, in the backfield, time and again thwarted the Panther's aerial attack.

CENTENARY, 21; MILLSAPS, 7

Highly touted as one of the strongest teams in the South, the Centenary eleven invaded the Major's domain intent on rolling up a large score, approximately a point a minute, so they said. The dope favored them to win by at least seven touchdowns.

The fighting spirit of the Majors, an immeasurable quantity, was not taken into account by the dopesters. Only by using their entire repertoire and all their substitutes were the Maroons able to conquer the Majors. The fighting spirit of the Purple and White was the marvel of the rather limited number of spectators.

Charlie "Zip" McCormick intercepted a Centenary pass and raced forty-five yards for the Majors' touchdown. R. B. "Breezie" Reeves ripped off some nice gains through the line. The sterling qualities of Walter "Prep" Galloway scintillated during this tilt.

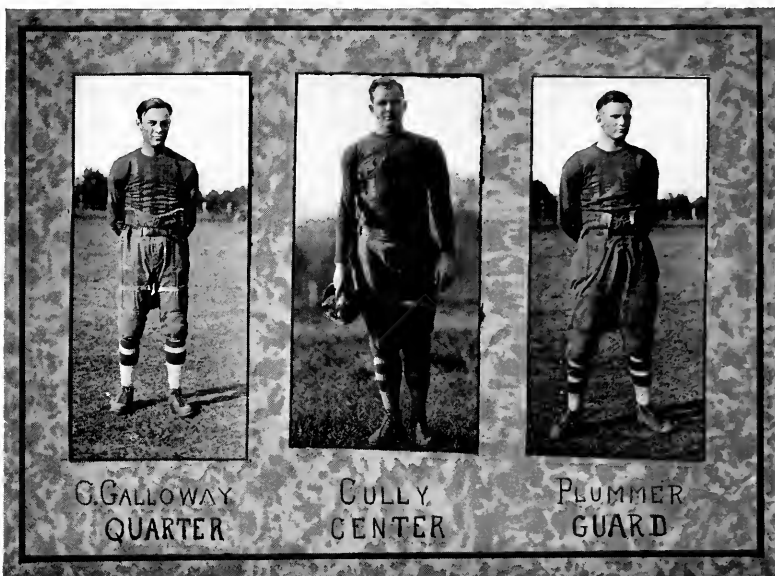

NORMAL, 7; MILLSAPS, 10

Suffering from over-confidence from their wonderful showing against Centenary, the Majors came near being humbled at the hands of the Pedagogues, a supposedly easy victim.

Early in the first quarter, the Majors marched down to the Normal twenty-yard line where "Bubber" Galloway booted a field goal from placement. Then the Majors lagged.

McCormick saved the day when, in the fourth quarter, he shot a perfect thirty-five-yard pass into the waiting arms of "Chick" Nelson, who was behind the Normal goal line. "Breezie" Reeves was a big factor in driving through the Normal line. "Prep" Galloway did some excellent work, both defensively and offensively.

HOWARD, 7; MILLSAPS, 14

Fighting tooth and toe nail through the first two quarters to a scoreless tie, the Bulldogs and the Majors gave Jackson fans as pretty a battle as was staged on the local field during the season. In the second half, the Majors showed their real game, coming from behind to win.

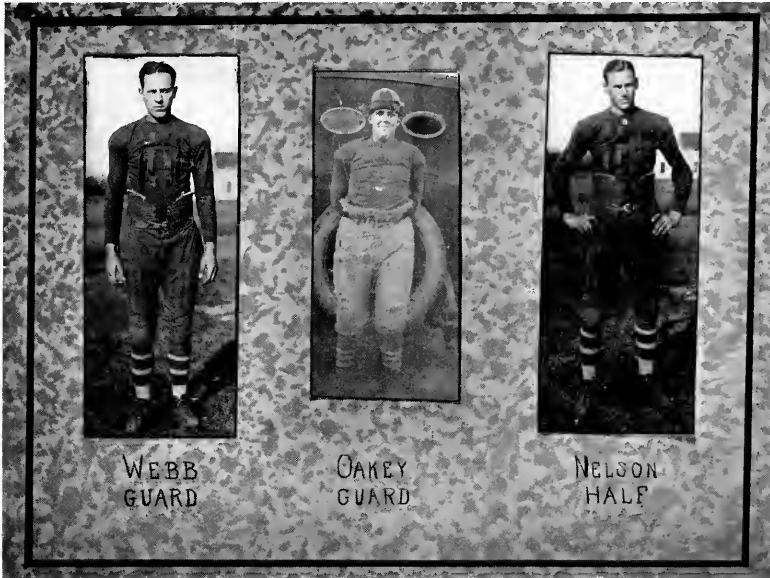

In the third quarter, a fumble on the Major's forty-yard line was recovered by a Bulldog, who raced through an open field for a touchdown. Then it was that the Purple and White tore through the Bulldog machine with a regularity that carried them from the kick-off to within a striking distance of the Howard goal. Holding on the part of the Majors drew a fifteen-yard penalty on the first down, leaving a gap of twenty-seven yards to cross the goal line. Three plays made twenty-five yards and first down. "Chick" Nelson was elected to smash over for the touchdown. And in one smash at the line, "Chick" delivered.

The Bulldogs kicked and again the Majors marched steadily toward that coveted goal line. But the Howard defense held and the ball went over. The Bulldogs had spent their force and were unable to make consistent gains, so were forced to kick. Three times they held the Majors after steady offensive moves had carried the oval well into Red and Blue territory. At the beginning of the fourth quarter the Majors, gaining second wind, started goalward again.

A varied attack carried the ball to the Howard eight-yard line where "Chick" Nelson was again called upon for necessary yardage, and in a smashing drive over left tackle, he went over for the second touchdown.

Culley's work far surpassed his usual steady game. He was in on every play and smeared the Howard offensive with clock-like regularity. C. Galloway was the general who made the win possible. "Red" Plummer, though only a sub, was a power in checking a Howard comeback.

MISSISSIPPI COLLEGE, 13; MILLSAPS, 7

The result of the annual Major-Choctaw tilt was quite a shock to the entire state. The Choctaws were doped an easy winner by six touchdowns by the sharks who forecast games, but these sharks received the jolt of their lives in the opening quarter of the game.

From the kick-off, the Majors marched to the Choctaw four-yard line, and only a lucky break in the form of an intercepted pass stemmed the rush of the Purple wave. They kicked out of danger, and the Majors again started goalward and advanced to the Choctaw ten-yard line before being again checked.

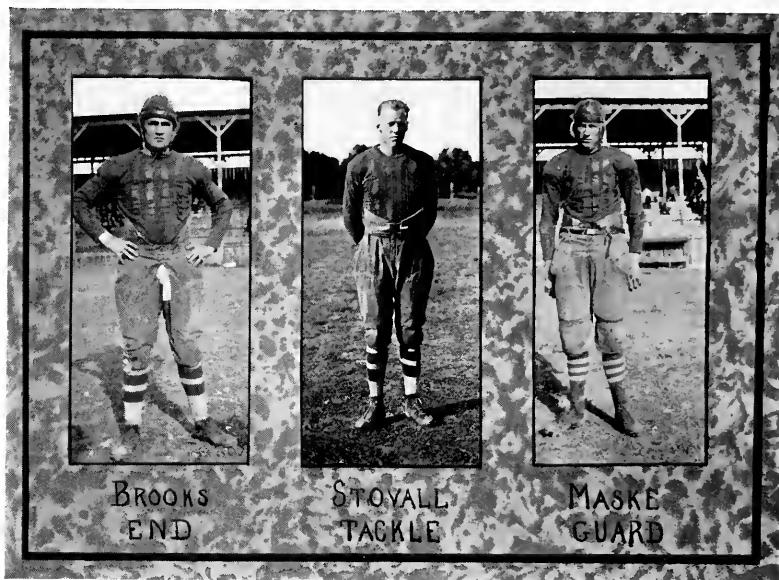

A punting duel followed and the quarter closed with the ball in Choctaw possession near midfield. In the second quarter, the Choctaw steam roller worked and they chalked up the first touchdown on straight line bucks.

In the third quarter the Major defense again faltered and before the rushing Choctaws could be checked they had crossed the Purple and White goal again.

With the score 13 to 0 against them in the fourth quarter, the Majors opened with their offensive ace. Daring aerial attacks, line plunges and end runs placed the ball on the Choctaw one-yard line. "Chick" Nelson smashed over the line for the first points ever scored by Millsaps against the Choctaws in football.

It was in this game that the freshman triumvirate shone forth with a radiance that could not be denied. "Chick" Nelson, "Pole" Webb, and "Skinney" Oakey were the standard bearers of the Class of 1926. "Chick" made repeated gains around end and through the line. "Pole" and "Skinney" opened hole after hole in the Choctaw line, while on the defense they presented an impenetrable barrier.

OLE MISS, 19; MILLSAPS, 7

Crippled and minus the services of the freshmen, the Majors entered the final game of the season with the grim determination to hold "Ole Miss" to a minimum score. The Majors were admittedly weaker than "Ole Miss." The Purple and White lacked substitutes, while on the "Ole Miss" bench sat nearly another team.

It was Thanksgiving and the largest crowd that ever attended a Millsaps' football game was on hand.

The game opened amid the cheering of supporters of both teams. It was evident from the first play that the game would be bitterly contested. The first quarter ended scoreless. In the second quarter "Ole Miss" scored on a varied attack, but failed to kick goal after touchdown.

A pass from McCormick to Brooks from midfield and a fifty-yard dash by Brooks featured the game and resulted in a touchdown for Millsaps. A kicked goal by C. Galloway gave the Majors a 7 to 6 lead.

Barbour intercepted a pass and raced forty yards to a touchdown. The half ended with "Ole Miss" in the lead by 12 to 7.

During the third period the reserves began to batter down the tiring Millsaps' forwards and successive line smashes carried the ball over. Barbour delivered the point after touchdown by a kick from placement.

The wonderful dash of Brooks, after receiving the pass, and his general work in this game, marked him as one of the best ends in the state and, as a result, he was chosen for the mythical all-state eleven. Stovall was a power in the line, and his punting was the best of the season on the local grounds. He also made the all-state eleven. Maske played the best game ever and it was certain that a runner tackled by him was downed.

Junior Majors

FOOTBALL SEASON, 1922

FOR the first time since Millsaps entered the intercollegiate football world, a Freshman team has had scheduled games with the teams of other institutions.

Four games were played by the team of 1922, and though the result in games won was not what was most desired, it was at least a beginning.

The Freshman Team received only general instruction at the hands of the Coach who had his hands full putting a creditable varsity in the field with only a limited amount of material. He could not be expected to spend much time with the Junior Majors, as the freshmen were called.

The first game played by the freshmen was against the Philadelphia High School eleven. The breaks were all against the Juniors, but despite this and the fact that they had only practiced signals two days before they left for the enemy's territory, they were only beaten by a score of 6 to 0.

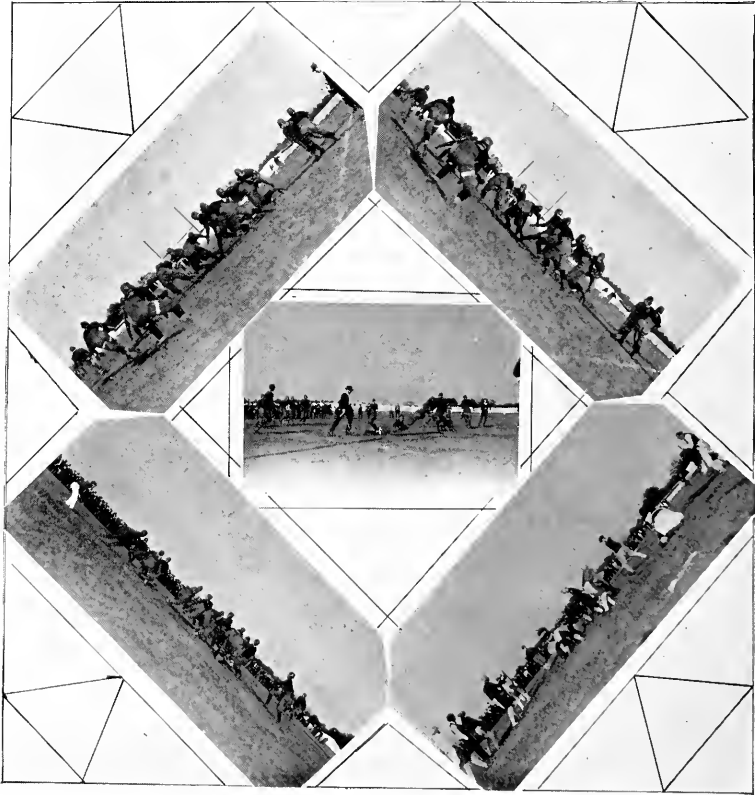

The second game was played with the Mississippi Deaf and Dumb School eleven on local grounds and the Juniors ran roughshod over the "Dummies." The final score was 36 to 0 in favor of the freshmen.

Two games were played with the freshman team of Mississippi College. In the first, on the local grounds, the Papposes won the decision, after a battle that was not decided until the last whistle. A touchdown in the second quarter gave the Papposes six points, and a goal from placement added one more, giving them a 7 to 0 decision over the Junior Majors.

The final game of the freshman schedule was played on Provine field, the hunting ground of the Papposes. Here Lady Luck took a hand, giving the Choctaw underlings two touchdowns on flukes. The Juniors crossed the Pappoose goal in the second half, and kicked goal from placement, giving them the seventh point. The final score was: Papposes, 14; Junior Majors, 7.

The games played gave the freshmen some excellent experience so that when the call is sounded for candidates for the varsity in 1923 they will be well fitted to begin training for places thereon.

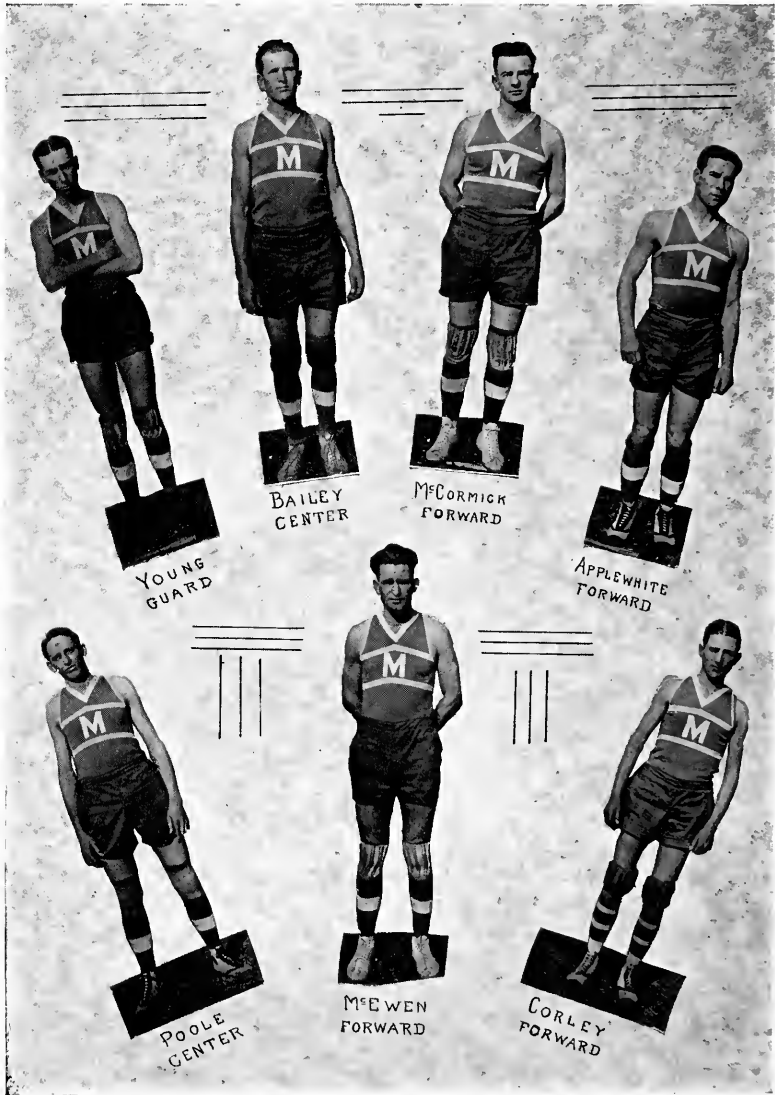

Basketball, 1922

The basketball season of 1922 could not be viewed as entirely successful from the point of view of scoring. Though the Purple and White was never defeated by a great difference in score, some jinx seemed to have camped on our trail and all but one game was lost. The handicap of having no adequate place to practice was never overcome, and the greater part of the season a majority of the regulars were continuously on the sick list.

Baseball, 1922

Were it not for the eternal optimism of the athletes and student body, we might have become discouraged by the Purple and White baseball season of 1922.

Again the jinx followed us and the majority of winning scores were on the side of our opponents. Every man played his position as a star, and the co-operation of the team was marked throughout the spring. There seemed, however, to be that something lacking which would give us the big end of the score.

The brilliant feature of the season was our twice defeating the strong "Ole Miss" team. They came to us fully expecting to send us to an ignoble defeat. The unexpected happened, however, and they were the ones who were humbled.

Track, 1922

The 1922 track team afforded Millsaps the opportunity to glory in victory over our traditional rival, Mississippi College. The Purple and White, under the leadership of Collins, prepared quietly, and when they went to Clinton the first week in May of last year, hardly anyone knew of their going.

Their return was triumphant, however, and a Choctaw scalp was hanging at the waist of every one of the victors. The Majors won the meet by a score of 54 to 42. First place was taken in seven events. First place in the high jump was tied by a Major, and second place was easily gained in seven events.

We are proud of the result of the 1922 track season, accomplished without the aid or direction of any save those who took part. Can we not make this showing a precedent?

Tennis, 1922-1923

Interest in tennis at Millsaps College has always been intense.

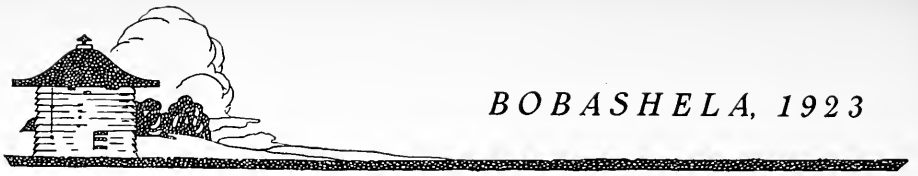

In the spring of 1922, the college doubles championship was won by Burton Ford and Walter Stokes, both members of the Class of '22. "Fish" Donald won the coveted honor of singles championship, a place that he has held since his entrance in college.

Those interested in the game were not satisfied with letting the ability of our champions confine itself to the campus. A match was arranged with Mississippi College, and Stokes, Ford, and Donald invaded the enemy's territory on Monday, May 22, 1922.

They came back victorious, Stokes and Ford winning the doubles match and Donald, the singles.

Mississippi College attempted to take the double championship to Clinton in the early fall of '23, but failed, Chatony and Donald winning the match.

Right Royal Ramblers

Each year it is the custom of Dr. Sullivan's Geology Class to organize itself into a Right Royal Ramblers' Club. According to custom, the Class of 1922-23 perfected its organization during the month of October, 1922, at the Petrified Forest, near Flora, Miss. It is the purpose of the Club to study the topography of the country and to determine the origin and value of rocks, fossils, plants, etc.

Gleanings from the English Department

WEBSTER'S dictionary defines humor as the faculty of discovering, expressing, or appreciating the ludicrous or the incongruous. It is in the interest of accuracy that in the first instance the connective or rather than and is used. Otherwise, the definition would exclude some of the most genuine humor of America—that of the American college. No reference is intended to such humor as is found in the column of jokes in the college newspaper or magazine. Much of that is clever but most of it is self-conscious. The unconscious humor of the American college student is more enjoyable than his self-conscious humor. When the student expresses the ludicrous or the incongruous without either discovering or appreciating it, his humor is likely to be at its best.

Witness, for example, the following extracted from freshman compositions:

One young man thoughtlessly shared with us a secret. He must have been of a type rather sentimental. Anyway, when writing of a particularly pleasant camping trip of a day's duration, he closed his composition by the statement that "After supper we got into a boat and fished and loved until about ten or eleven o'clock."

One who, no doubt, believed in a life close to nature, gave the following as part of a plan for building a cabin: "To get everything ready, one needs five-foot planks about sixteen feet long and one inch thick. One will also need several pounds of nails and some cold tar."

After the actual building of the cabin was completed, the same student described the method by which the wintry winds could be kept from chilling the bones of the occupant. "The next thing to do is to chink all the cracks with cotton, then pour tar in the cracks on the cotton so the cotton cannot come out and the tar will also stop the cracks," he said. If the materials were applied with the rashness as were the words describing the operation, no doubt the cabin was warm.

The rural school system of our state comes in for severe criticism from some of those who have been keenly observant.

"A longer school term would give more time to the incompetent instructors to drill work into the students," avers one who is interested in education. The heads of our educational system should take note.

Another who has investigated the conditions of sanitation, states that "Germs are left lying around on the ground." Still another has had his aesthetic sense offended by an unsightly structure when he contends that "The rural school in some localities is still clinging on to the tradition of a one-teacher school set up on some little hill with no more architectural beauty than a goods box."

Those who have advanced beyond the freshman year have also supplied us with a laugh or so. One student with more information than ability to express it, says "The Pardoner of the Canterbury Tales has a piece of the sail which was on the ship that Peter was on when Jesus saved him, and a cross, and pigs' bones." The same student averred that "Faustus wished he had never been born many times over."

Another student was somewhat unfair to the alliterative quality of Anglo-Saxon verse when he said that "The author of Beowulf made his poetry illiterate." It may well be, however, that to such a student the term "illiterate" seems more fit.

Another divulges the information that "Chaucer was present at the unsuccessful capture of Rheims." By the way, has not Rheims been more than once "unsuccessfully captured?"

The story of Doctor Faustus loses somewhat in dignity at the hands of the "slinger of slang" who says, "Dr. Faustus sold his soul to the devil for pleasure. After awhile this got old to the Dr. and he wanted to swap back, but nothing doing."

The sublime Milton comes in for rough treatment at the hands of an unappreciative student, who declares that "Paradise Lost and Paradise Regained are epic poems written in prose." Having applied the word prose to the works of John Milton, what could he hold in reserve for the so-called poetry of Amy Lowell.

Edward King, the friend of Milton, is found transformed in the statement of a student who says, "Lycidas is an elegy on the death of King Edward who was drowned in the Irish Sea." We might very truly add that there is

"Nothing of him that doth change
But doth suffer a sea-change
Into something rich and strange."

Another student explains that "A characteristic of Sterne was his mentalism." We are led to believe that the characteristic is as unusual as the term applied to it. The word seems to have no possible connection with sentimentalism.

The information that "Dryden wrote a great deal of political satire, which was wildly read and had a great influence," calls to mind the fact that a similar reception has often greeted political writings of a much lower order in the state of Mississippi.

In statements of different students there is found a history of the beginning and the end of Swift's political career. One says, "Swift led a dull life up to this time, and then went into politics." Another concludes the sad story saying, "Swift was a politician while in London; he returned home and went crazy."

The student who affirmed that "Swift wrote the Dunciad, which is a defense of the Irish people," probably had no aspirations for any of the great politic offices in American life, such as policeman, Mayor of Boston, or President of these United States.

Dryden's Annus Mirabilis is transformed into the weird, but no less interesting, "Animalis Manulius." Sounds like a Roman cattle disease, doesn't it? The same patient Latin student avers that "Pope translated Livid."

"Pope," a student says, "was born a physical wreck." Poor Pope, so much less fortunate than most of us, who have, at least, a hand in the shaping of ourselves.

Blake, who wrote Songs of Innocence and Experience, is accused of writing Songs of Indolence. It is not the first time a poet has been so accused.

Could it be Johnson's Life of Savage or Macaulay's Essay on Johnson which is responsible for the severe judgment of the student who says, "Sam Johnson wrote The Life of a Savage, which is a portrait of his own life while in London."

John Gilpin's Ride can scarcely be recognized in the statement to the effect that "The greatest of Cowper's works is John Gibbon's Riots." The rose loses some of its sweetness when called by such another name.

An even worse lot befalls Wordsworth's Intimations of Immortality, which is found variously spoken of as Inclinations to Immortality, Inlimations of Mortality, Imitations of Immortality, and, God save the mark, Inclinations to Immortality.

After such treatment of the great ode of the gentle egoist, one cannot be more than mildly surprised to read from a student that "Wordsworth wrote imaginary poetry." And yet, Jeffrey, wishing to say his worst for Wordsworth's most prosy and pedestrian style, could not have said it more unkindly.

Another would-be critic answers that "Jane Austen's work has the freedom of uncertainty." The statement, though somewhat misplaced, seems suggestive of a large truth. Have you ever thought how bound in, how limited, certainty is, as compared with the tremendous freedom of uncertainty?

The statement sounds somewhat out of harmony with Morris' ordinary style and subject-matter, but it is none the less interesting to be informed that, when Milanion marries Atalanta, "The King gave his daughter a big dairy." Such doweries are even yet held in high esteem.

Notice, too, the simple and pathetic rendering which a student gives the lover's case in Rosetti's Blessed Damozel—"He thinks he hears the voice of the maiden singing in Heaven, but he awakes and finds it is only a squirrel singing in the trees."

Even the poorest speller may sometimes make a virtue of his defect, and stumble upon a statement so suggestive of truth as the following: "Byron, after biting his sweetheart good-bye, went to Cambridge, where he gave his attention to history and friction."

Though such statements, by the great American college student, bear with them, for the teacher, the sting of defeat, in many cases the unconscious humor of the deliverance brings, along with the sting, an effective antidote.

The Poet's Corner

WISE AND OTHERWISE

By D. F. McNEIL

Service

I seek to gain the greatest heights
That mortals may attain;
I care not for the flow'ry ways,
The laurel wreath of fame.
I have not sought for shining gold
My pleasures to alloy;
I only seek that happiness
In service we enjoy.

I care not now for empty praise
For deeds I haven't done;
But when the last farewell is said,
The battle's fought and won,
I hope to leave some work of worth
Within the hearts of men,
To help them as they go along
The victory to win.

And, so in service do we find
The joy that all men seek,
And some reward is given for
Each kindly word we speak.
The plaudits that the crowd can give
Will wither and decay,
But memory of a service done
Will never pass away.

Faint Heart

My lady fair,
Her golden hair
Let's fall a-down her shoulder;
I'd steal a tress—
She's no redress—
Were I a little bolder.

From her sweet lip
A bee might sip,
Sweeter than rose-leaf's savor.
A kiss I'd take—
No cry she'd make—
Were I a little braver.

Her neat, trim waist
Just suits my taste,
Close in my arms I'd fold her,
And clasp her tight—
She'd feel no fright—
Were I a little bolder.

She's waiting now
'Till I find how
To ask of her a favor.
She'll be my wife—
I'd stake my life—
When I'm a little braver.

Love on the Campus

Dan Cupid has a funny way
Of going 'round about his work,
Upon the campus every day
This little god is seen to lurk;
And if we looked we all might see
This tiny sprite extolling fee.

In every car, on every bench,
At least one pair is seen to sit,
And Cupid's arrows seem to wrench
Each heart; and so the flame is lit
That grows into a flame the while
The older ones sit back and smile.

And e'en among the guilty ones
Are many Sophs and Juniors, too;
And in the lists there often comes
A Senior, though these are but few;
So thus the evil grows and grows—
Where will it end? Oh, goodness knows!

Yet I'll not mention names for fear
Of libel suits or something such;
But I will whisper in your ear
If you will promise me this much—
That you'll not tell a single soul
From whom this god's receiving toll.

But, no I won't; I'll think a while Before I give the names. But, say!
It seems I see a damsel smile,
So I can't give myself away.
And thus the moral is made plain—
Don't dig a ditch—you'll fall therein.

BELLE LINDSEY RECEIVES MISS LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Famous Lady Royally Entertained While in City

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 4.—Miss Lydia E. Pinkham, one of the world's foremost benefactors of the human race, was given a reception in the home of Miss Belle Lindsey yesterday afternoon between the hours of four and six.

Miss Pinkham is en route to Mongolia, where, she states, she has found a new root that is a panacea for all ills. She is most enthusiastic in her endorsement of the new remedy.

"It will cure corns, dandruff, stomach trouble, eczema, ear ache and most anything," she stated, "and the beauty about the whole thing is that we are going to be able to put dollar bottles on the market for only thirty-five cents."

Miss Pinkham is a somewhat portly woman about five feet tall, and was gorgeously clad in an amber colored gown of tulle. She wore a pair of latest black pumps studded with emeralds, and hose to match.

As she entered the reception hall she was warmly greeted by women who have benefitted from her wonderful remedy. After acknowledging the greeting, she delivered a short talk on the virtues of her remedy in which she urged that all beware of the imitations which are flooding the market.

"Demand the original Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound," she concluded with a flourish.

The reception room was tastefully decorated with herbs that are used in the compound while the walls were covered with testimonials and covers from bottles. The testimonials were gathered from newspapers from every corner of the United States. After serving punch which had been spiked with several bottles of the natural remedy, the reception came to an end.

Miss Lindsey is being congratulated by her many friends over the success of yesterday afternoon's entertainment, while Miss Pinkham has added a host of those who have been sufferers to those who now enjoy perfect health.

P. K. MOVEMENT ENDORSED BY PROF

"Handsome" Harmon of Millsaps College Says "Get in the Swim."

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 31.—Professor Frances S. Harmon, better known as "Handsome," a prominent member of the Millsaps College faculty, has endorsed the great P. K. movement that is sweeping the country.

On the morning of January 28 Professor Harmon was surprised by a reporter of "Le Scandale," while seated in an automobile with one of the fair co-ed vamps of Millsaps.

The reporter, who was passing near the cars, heard a low mumble proceeding from a new Essex parked near the steps. He stole behind it and this is what he saw:

Mr. Harmon was holding the fair young thing in a tight embrace; he was tenderly whispering sweet nothings in her ear.

By some trick of fate, the reporter sneezed and surprised the two lovers. Mr. Harmon seemed

J. B. ABNEY MIXED IN LOVE SCANDAL

Prominent Senior a Victim of a Fickle Heart

Necessity for reporting the escapade of J. B. Abney is deplored by this paper. We hate to color our sheet with "yellow" stuff, but the facts happened and we must print what follows:

Mr. Abney, a member of the Millsaps College student body, and an aspirant for a political office, became illudioned. He thought that a man to become prominent in Mississippi politics must mix himself in some scandal.

Working on this theory, Mr. Abney proceeded to become mixed in a scandal.

Joe, who has always had the reputation of one who breaks hearts, became infatuated with a fair co-ed.

Well, the affair continued and the girl fell madly in love with "Jomio." She denied herself the company of every other boy and awaited the popping of the fatal question.

It never came, Joe saw another. His fickle heart tired of the first fair one and he sought another field of conquest.

Feeling between the two ladies involved, became intense; and finally a hair pulling occurred with fatal results.

"I should not be held responsible," said Mr. Abney on being interviewed. "Because they fall for me is no fault of mine."

The first lady concerned is suing J. B. for $100.00 and breach of trust. Joe is jubilant. He says that his entrance into the political arena is marked for success because of the "affairs" in which he has participated.

PROF. BOWEN'S QUICK RECOVERY

"I Was a Broken Man for Twenty Years. Now I'm Well."

"Having tried every doctor in three states, changed climate, underwear, and cooks a half-dozen times, I continued deplorably weak as far as my physical condition was concerned," says C. Asben Bowen, H. E. N. P. K., Professor of Instruction at Millsaps College.

"I was unable to leave off my overcoat either in winter or in summer, had to wear my overshoes continually, even to bed, and was lost without my umbrella," Mr. Bowen continued.

"One day while being treated at the Charity Hospital, I secured a bottle of 'An-i-lac.' I took one dose and felt better than a man with a pair of monkey glands. I took another dose and felt like a man of twenty. The third dose reduced my years by three more. I was afraid to drink further."

Continuing his praise of this natural remedy, Prof. Bowen said that after he had taken several doses, he gave the bottle to his wife for furniture polish. At another time his Ford gave out of gas, and "An-i-lac" was used in the engine to great advantage.

BLACK CAUSES SENSATION

New Style Introduced to Millsaps Students.

Millsaps College, Oct. 12.—"Get a bathing suit," urged Mr. M. M. Black, treasurer of Millsaps College, this morning in a short talk to the student body.

Mr. Black was all smiles when he appeared garbed in a boldly cut, one-piece bathing suit, striped with the most popular colors. He also wore his usual derby and carried his sun shade.

"I have trouble in keeping my papers together," Mr. Black stated, "as there are no pockets, but I find the suit particularly appropriate when I visit the dining hall."

"The last time I visited the boys—it was at an early hour in the morning I believe—my spirits were a bit dampened so I thought it best to prepare myself,"

RIVERS APPLEWHITE SUES FORMER LOVER

Alleged Fraternity Man Made Defendant.

Miss Rivers Applewhite, nineteen and nifty, surprised her friends yesterday by announcing that she had brought suit for $5,000,000 against Smily Charlesbro, alleged frat man, who has been unduly attentive to her lately.

The exact cause of the suit is not known, and because of her timid nature, it is hard to draw Miss Applewhite into a discussion of her case. She says, however, that the suit is a result of lack of affection.

Miss Applewhite alleges that Smily caused her to contract a severe cold, to lose the use of her voice for two and a half days and that during the time of her sickness, he paid no attention to her.

In commenting further, she said, "I first met Smily—as I affectionately called him—two years ago at a dance at the Firemen's Hall on the Gulf Coast. He gave me a grand rush, cooed to me beneath the moon and to the laugh-

The purpose of "Le Scandale" has been to publish all that we think would be impossible to happen—and it never will happen.

From this statement you know that nothing herein contained even borders on the truth. We have endeavored to make what is printed herein ridiculous, and unless it is ridiculous we have failed in our purpose.

If you have been one of those who, unfortunately, is the object of our vitriolic pen, count yourself as one of the chosen. The very fact that you have been considered as a fit subject for a "news" article, is proof of your popularity.

So we leave it with you. If you are offended, we most humbly apologize; we misunderstood you. If you are amused, we pat ourselves on the back and take credit for having given you a laugh or two.

FACULTY RULES

DANCING O. K.

Dr. Watkins astonished the student body on Wednesday morning when he announced that the "lid is off," and in celebration the college was going to bear the expense of a big dance to be given next Tuesday.

He also said that hereafter the college is going to encourage theatricals, and urged that the Y. W. C. A. stage a musical comedy after the order of the "Broadway Review."

This action, he announced, was taken at the behest of Professors Lin, Bowen, and Noble. All performances will be under the direct supervision of Dr. Noble.

PROF. HARMON GIVES NEW COURSE

Jackson, Miss., Mar. 4.—As an aftermath of his unreserved endorsement of the great P. K. Movement, and because of pressure from the other members of the faculty, Prof. F. S. Harmon, history lecturer, is going to introduce a course in love making.

"I have had wide experience with women," says Mr. Harmon. "I have tamed those from the wild and woolly pine forests in South Mississippi to the queens of the underworld in Paris."

"I know 'em," the Professor laughingly remarked, on being interviewed by a "Le Scandale" reporter.

The course will be rather expensive as the strain on Mr. Harmon's heart will warrant an extra charge.

The membership, of course, will be confined to the feminine element of the student body, and will be limited.

Plans for organization are as yet incomplete, but Mr. Harmon says that the class will meet from 9:30 to — each night. Each class is to consist of only one girl, as the import of the work will not allow a greater number.

"I have an entirely new method, by which a girl may get a man."

"Special attention," he concluded his interview, "will be given to bugging and kissing. I can teach a girl 75 ways to kiss."

Ho, girls, come early for a front seat.

ter of the waves, and promised to be forever faithful.

"When our courtship was transferred to the Millsaps Campus, he was a most constant and attentive lover (apologies to Bill Watkins).

"He accompanied me to church regularly, at which place he showed his entire disregard for my feelings a short time ago.

"One cold January morning, I attended the church of Smily—how I love that name—and he opened a window behind the seat in which I was sitting. Thinking he meant only to cool me, I said nothing. But the draft continued, I became cold, I shivered, I got numb, soon stiff. But he only laughed in derision. He was sitting by another and refused to close the window.

"Sickness resulted in the condition of silence mentioned and I could see nothing else to do but to sue.

"I loved Smily—I love him yet. Because of that little spark that is left in my heart, I am asking only $5,000,000 balm."

Y. W. THEATRICAL GREAT SUCCESS

The musical comedy, followed by a dance, given by the Y. W. was a huge success. The girls who took part are to be complimented on the bewitching costumes they wore. Dr. Noble also deserves an undue amount of praise for the success of the performance. The skill with which the girls danced and acted showed that they had been directed by a master. Dr. Noble said that he had given years of study to the musical comedy and that since residing in Jackson he has never missed a performance at the local play house.

The play was carried out in a rather novel fashion. The officers of the Y. W. first appeared and gave a most fetching interpretation of the dance of spring. The officers were followed by the various committees, each giving a comic sketch, song, or dance.

There was really no plot to the performance but it was thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

The most exciting event of the evening was the dance following the performance. It was given in the living room of Galloway Hall. For the occasion the Millsaps orchestra had been secured—and the Jazz music they did turn out. "Jazz Hound" Sullivan kept the place in an uproar by his antics and the uncanny music he drew from his bass viol.

The expected always happens. There was one rather tipsy person on the floor. Johnny Ferguson got loose after a few too many draughts from a little brown jug, and caused quite a commotion by his attempts to sing. He was taken from the hall, though, and the remainder of the evening was uneventful.

KAPPA DELTA-PHI MU GIVE BIG PARTY

The Kappa Delta and Phi Mu sororities entertained at a party last week to which were invited the rushees of both organizations.

Never before on the campus was such a scene of comradery witnessed. The members of Kappa Delta could see virtue only in Phi Mu, and vice versa. It is going to be hard for the freshmen to choose this year which organization they intend to join.

The entertainment took place in the gym, which was tastefully decorated. A large punch bowl was placed at one end, from which flowed golden fluid, the like of which has never before been tasted. Eats were extant and every one partook sumptuously.

The members of the two sororities enjoyed themselves thorough-paralyzed, he thought he had been discovered by Dr. Watkins.

An interview was secured with the famous history lecturer on January 29, regarding the P. K. Movement.

"It has my hearty endorsement," said Mr. Harmon. "While it is nothing new, this is the first time an organized effort has been made to further the movement."

"In the interest of all P. K.'s," he continued, "I shall circulate a petition in which permission will be asked to use the automobiles for purposes of making love."
